Red Cross Branch Maintains Activity In War Work

Local Funds Substantially Helped by Coal Companies' Monthly Contributions; Financial Report Submitted.

The regular monthly meeting of the Red Cross Society was held in the council chamber on Monday, with the following present: W. Dutil, president; Mrs. Arthur Graham, secretary; Mrs. W. L. Rippon, vice-president; Mesdames E. Dunlop, Claxton, Ash, Chuchla, Kolber, Miss A. Yull, Miss G. Les, Messrs. H. Sherratt, M. Opalski, S. Evers, N. Macaulay (treasurer) and H. T. Halliwell.

Following the reading of minutes of the previous meeting, the financial report for April 5 was read, and is published below.

The film of the Royal Visit last year will be shown at the Palace on Tuesday and Wednesday next, and a percentage of the admission charges will be credited to the Red Cross. If possible a matinee will be arranged for the children. All adults are urged to see the picture.

Among communications read was one from L.A. Col Tomlinson, Alberta Red Cross commissioner, expressing thanks to the International and McGillivray Coal Companies for their donations of $50 each per month for 1940.

A letter re method of forwarding supplies to soldiers was read, and the Soldiers' Comfort League of Coleman will be advised. Supplies may be sent through the Red Cross free of carriage costs.

The dance committee reported on arrangements for May 23. The Aradians' orchestra has been engaged, and the hall will be suitably decorated. The committee is charged by Mrs. H. Claxton, T. McCloy, W. Opalski and H. T. Halliwell. Tickets are now on sale at 50c each, and Miss Yull's junior Red Cross work party is being held at the Red Cross work room.

The next regular meeting will be held on Monday, May 13, at 8 p.m. Mrs. Rippon received a quantity of yarn for Red Cross work and parties willing to make up same into needed articles can obtain same from her house or at the Red Cross work room on Tuesday or Friday afternoons.

If there are men from Coleman in the Air Force in Great Britain, the local branch of the Red Cross would like to have their names and addresses.

PASSING OF MRS. WILLIAM OLIVER, OF BLAIRMORE

General regret is widely expressed on the death of Mrs. William Oliver, of Blairmore. After a long illness, she passed on Saturday last in her 45th year, and the funeral was held on Monday at Blairmore, attended by a large number of sympathizing friends. From Coleman, members of the Rebekah lodge joined with members of other Pass towns in observing their funeral rites at the graveside.

Mrs. Oliver was one of Blairmore's early school teachers, and was married to Mr. Oliver 22 years ago. Besides her husband, members of the family are Rose, Marion, Jean, and two sons, George and Hugh, to whom sympathy is expressed. The funeral service at Blairmore United Church was in charge of Rev. E. B. Arrol, B.A.

W. H. Smith, manager of the Government liquor store, is spending a few weeks in Lethbridge, after a severe heart attack, which necessitated two weeks in hospital here. His place is being taken by Jack Clark, of Blairmore.

Damage in West Coleman to be Surveyed by Mining Companies and Council.

Regular meeting of council held on Tuesday evening. Present: Mayor D'Appollonia, Councillors Antrobus, Almon, Balloch, Ford, Gentile and Kerr.

A letter was read from George Kellogg, general manager of International Coal & Coke Co., relative to the area in West Coleman whence complaints have been registered, due to sinkings of old mine workings, causing damage to property. Mr. Kellogg invited the council to appoint a committee, and along with his engineers a thorough inspection of the area would be made. All available information held by the company in regards to mining in this area would be available to the council. He added that no mining operations were being conducted in this area at present. The inspection will be made on the 14th day at McGillivray mine, other to a Saturday.

A letter was received from Edmondson, re council collecting both town and school taxes, stating that by-law 146 was unnecessary.

A letter from A. Hurtig, department of health, stated that it was necessary for town to appoint a medical health officer. After much discussion a letter was drafted by council, in which a sum of $25 per month will be offered the local doctors to undertake the duties. The letter was addressed to Drs. Ross and Claxton. Two councillors voted in opposition.

Henry Zak asked permission to cut hole in the sidewalk west of the store on Main street to allow construction of a grocery chute into the basement. This was refused.

Frank Durek was present, and asked council's advice to solve the trouble at present existing between himself and Andrew Halluk, his next-door neighbor. Both parties have homes on the same lot and since they have built on solid rock there are constantly falling, and surface water runs from Durek's place on to Halluk's. Durek is ill-felicitous. Council expressed its sympathy for Durek, but failing this empty the three cesspools on Durek's part of the lot and let peace reign. The cesspools fill up again. By that time, humorously remarked Mayor D'Appollonia, there will be new councillors to advise you further.

Joe Stevenson was present to ask council what action they intended taking re moving squatters from provincial park property on Crow's Nest Lake. After a lengthy discussion, Mr. Stevenson was told that council would come to a decision at a later date and inform him of their decision.

Mr. Stevenson threatened to take the matter up with the attorney-general's department if the council did not take adequate measures for moving the "squatters."

Robert Gee was awarded contract to clean old cesspools at the town hall.

Joe Kapelka, jr., asked permission to spread gravel, taken from an excavation at his home in West Coleman, on a back lane. He was granted this privilege, with the stipulation that if it interfered with drainage to that area he must remedy it at once.

Wm. Pryde, in a letter, complained to council of the damage done to his picket fence on Fourth street by motorists smashing into it. Since the council will soon make improvements in the area on the drainage system, including the elimination of the bridge at this point and thereby widen the road at the corner where Mr. Pryde's home is located, it was felt that Mr. Pryde's complaint would be taken care of.

Ephraim Hill was placed on town grader, and also asked town to set a purchase price on same. Council will take up the matter.

Mrs. P. Serotta asked council to endeavor to secure employment for her husband at one of the mines. Letter was filed.

Walter Williams submitted an application for town relief. On advice of Councillor Antrobus, a letter will be sent by council to Dr. Wright, chairman of Workmen's Compensation Board, asking him to reconsider Mr. Williams' case. On motion of Councillor Antrobus, the council went on record "that the Workmen's Compensation Board is not playing the game with this man." No relief was granted Mr. Williams until further word from the board.

Val Peletier asked for three-way relief plan.

Charles D'Amico was recommended for relief.

Andrew Halluk's application to be placed on town relief was granted.

Mrs. Durek made application for wood and electric light. Wood was granted, but the electric light request will be investigated.

Mrs. Filleard asked for wood and coal. This granted, with two councillors dissenting, three voting for request.

A letter from Red Deer council, protesting against the sliding scale of war tax on electrical energy was

GONE WITH THE WIND'S COW

Dairymen and farmers in general are interested to note that the cow which appears prominently in the excellent movie, "Gone With the Wind," is of too modern a type to have been in existence at the time of Sherman's capture of Atlanta.

Horses have not changed so greatly, so that the horses shown in the movie are largely true to the period. It is indicative of the tremendous strides in cattle breeding on this continent during the past seventy-five years that the sleek bossy is almost as out of place in the Civil War scenes as telephone wires are in the pictures of ancient Rome.—The Printed Word.

MONEY IN SLOT MACHINES; $4,000 LICENSE FEE

Slot machine have been declared illegal in Alberta, but there's a town in Ontario which is going to invest a lot of money, to make more money for the town by installing fifteen of these gaming machines at various points of the town. The license fee for the first slot machine installed is four thousand dollars, but the subsequent licenses are easier—they're ten dollars apiece.

There are always plenty of customers for gaming machines so the town in question should wait its treasury as time goes on in its unusual, and not too savory experiment.

CLEAR UP MISUNDERSTANDING

Councillor Ford tells The Journal that, through a town council report in the paper recently re rent of Community hall for Youth Training Movement, he has got in wrong with the group.

A letter was received recently by the council from Miss Edna Morris, secretary of the group, asking council for financial aid. In the letter it was stated that the rent of the hall for the year had been raised. Councillor Ford was asked to investigate. He asked the hall secretary, Max Stigler, if the hall rent had been raised, and the latter replied that it had. This Councillor Ford brought back to the council. Where the error was made was in the fact that the group's activities start in October, and at that time the hall was under different management than when Councillor Ford was asked to investigate. The rent had been raised in October from $10 in 1938-39 to $20 in 1939-40, by the committee then in charge. Mr. Stigler maintained the rate that had gone into operation in October, when he took over the hall management in January of this year. Councillor Ford was equally as innocent when he gave his report to the council. It is hoped that this explanation will put Councillor Ford back into good relationship with the training group.

Really worth-while buyers are influenced by attractive and attention-compelling advertising in The Journal.

PHOTOGRAPHS WANTED

The Journal will pay 50c for photo proofs suitable for publication. The most desirable are sharp prints, unmounted, preferred, and suitable for reproduction. Interesting outdoor scenes, or photos of people, places, or things, and this office would be pleased to have same submitted. Dark prints are not as suitable as those which are sharp and of clear outline.

Polish Society Sponsors Mass Protest Meeting

Resolution is Approved to be Forwarded to Governmental Authorities as Well as Representatives of Enemy Countries.

The protest meeting in the Polish hall on Sunday, April 8, at which the speakers were Miss Phyllis Kukurum, of Calgary, who recently returned from two years in Poland; Dr. Crawford Rose, H. T. Halliwell and Walter Chuchla, secretary of the Society. Joe Michalski was chairman. A collection taken amounted to over $50, in aid of Polish relief.

The speakers voiced the protest of all peoples, irrespective of nationalities, over the atrocities committed by the Germans against the Polish population, and the following resolution was passed by a standing vote:

RESOLUTION
Resolution passed at a joint public mass meeting held at the Polish hall, Coleman, Alberta, on Sunday, 7th April, 1940, in the presence of 250 persons.

1. That we brand before God and the civilized world the horrifying crimes of the barbarian invaders of Poland, and the particularly heinous mass shooting and deportation of the innocent population, murders of women and children, stealing and robbing of national and private property of Poles from their homes, thus condemning them to the suffering of famine and death.

2. That we pledge ourselves to religion and suppressing of the Polish language, deliberate destruction of culture, science and monuments.

3. That we pledge ourselves to make any sacrifice and effort in order to contribute to the victory of justice and honor, the symbol of which should be the complete reconstruction of a strong Polish state. The frontiers of this state must assure security and lasting peace, and they must include all Polish territories stolen by Germans during the past centuries.

4. That we affirm to the Government of Canada our loyalty and confidence, and invite it to consider the question of aid for Polish victims of the war, especially the possibility of immigration of certain categories of Polish refugees, living abroad under deplorable conditions.

5. That we send to the Polish Government of National Unity, and to the Polish Army in France, the expressions of our fraternal and brotherly sentiments, as well as our confidence, that the triumph of our just cause will be complete and will bring a better future to Poland.

6. Be it further resolved that copies of this resolution be forwarded to the Prime Minister of Canada, the governments of Great Britain, France and Poland, as well as the governments of neutrals, and that through their accredited representatives in Canada. Copies of this resolution to be forwarded also to the nearest diplomatic representatives of the aggressor nations hereinbefore referred to.

GROWN IN SUNNY, SOUTHERN ONTARIO

A Fading Dream

Whether or not the problem of the effective and profitable disposition of surplus exportable farm products in Western Canada will be temporarily solved as a result of war requirements for the duration of the war, the probable trend of agriculture in the post-war period is not so certain, and probably will continue to be doubtful until stern necessity dictates some important changes in policies and methods.

The foregoing comment is inspired by the fact that at least one of the possible solutions which appeared to hold out glittering prospects a few months ago has been more recently shattered when viewed in the light of cold reason applied to unduplicated, but unwelcome facts.

Reference is made to the theory that probably in the not far distant future the yield of thousands of these broad western acres might be devoted, after processing, to industrial purposes, thus bringing about that much to be desired end, a better balanced economy in Western Canadian life—a sort of wedding of agriculture and industry, as it were.

A Glittering Prospect

Only as recently as last summer, this prospect was held out as "the way out" for Canadian agriculture by D. G. McKenzie, writing in "Social Welfare", a publication, issued by the Christian Social Council of Canada, on the work of the National Chemurgic committee, a body set up to make a survey of research work being done by governmental bodies, universities and industrial plants in the interests of co-ordination of this very important and potentially valuable work and with a view to making the results of research work of practical value to agriculture and industry.

Speaking of the aspirations of the National Chemurgic committee, Mr. McKenzie stated that: "We feel that if we could divert four to five million acres of land now devoted to wheat production to other forms of agricultural production more suitable for industrial utilization, we will have largely solved our wheat surplus problem."

It may be, he continued, "that we can grow more flax, sunflowers, soyas beans and similar crops from which we can extract vegetable oils and fibrous material that can be used in many branches of industry."

"The possibility of the utilization of our surplus milk in the production of milk casein is being considered. Standard milk board may be made from wheat straw and legumin crops. The possibility of marketing more of our surplus fruit production in the form of fruit juices is to be studied. More and more of our corn and potatoes may be utilized in making of starch, etc. Flax, hemp, sunflowers and soyas beans may become a profitable source of vegetable oils, and additional investigation may prove that alcohol can be profitably extracted from barley and low grade wheat and used for blending with fuel oils."

These and other prospective conversions of the product of the field into the output of the factory were held out with considerable enthusiasm as a potential solution of some of the ills of agriculture in the term: "And so the vista of the future opens up."

Because these things may be, and undoubtedly are, physically possible, it by no means follows that they are economically feasible. Indeed, these possibilities and other prospects were canvassed at a very recent conference of agricultural technicians, research men and industrial authorities in Winnipeg when they were forced to the conclusion that, at present at any rate, none of them holds any immediate prospect of realization as a practical project, except perhaps, the conversion of flaxseed into oil to be used in the manufacture of paints at any rate insofar as the prairie provinces may be concerned.

Processing Is Costly

Such a conclusion is quite understandable when it is pointed out that the utilization of agricultural products for industrial purposes on considerable scale involves the removal, transport and processing of bulk commodities and, in the west at any rate, their transfer over considerable distances before they can be made available as saleable manufactured goods. This inevitably entails considerable expense, even if cheap labor were available and when added to this, is the fact that such commodities are likely to compete with similar goods produced elsewhere at much lower costs, the economic feasibility of such projects fade away.

Such a conclusion, however, should not act as an impediment to the continuance of the work being done by the National Chemurgic committee. On the contrary, it should serve as a stimulus to that body and other organizations interested in the development of agriculture and industry and the solution of their joint and several problems to further efforts to find a way to make the valuable results of research work in the laboratory economically applicable. Because this cannot be done immediately does not mean that the work should cease.

Unremitting attention to the task in hand with an eye to a practical objective will undoubtedly sooner or later result in the evolution of cheaper manufacturing processes and the time may come when the handicaps which now appear insuperable will be overcome. In the meantime, however, farmers in the west will have to look to other measures to solve their post war problems if and when they come.

The Banff-Jasper Highway

Provides A New Channel For Tourist Travel In Mountain Fastness

The official opening of the Banff-Jasper Highway, scheduled for Dominion Day, July 1, 1940, makes particularly timely a new booklet issued by the National Parks Bureau of the Department of Mines and Technical Surveys, bearing the title "The Banff-Jasper Highway". The booklet is profusely illustrated and describes in text and picture the new mountain highway which will unite two of Canada's greatest national parks and open up to motorists a region formerly impenetrable except by saddle-horse and pack-trail.

The Banff-Jasper Highway provides a new channel for tourist travel, not only for Canadians, but for the people of the United States and all others who come to share it. From the luxury of the modern motor car it reveals breath-taking majesty in unbroken but ever-changing panorama. The highway not only commands much of the finest mountain scenery in the world, but because its entire length lies in national parks, which are wild life sanctuaries, the opportunity to see the native fauna of the district, from the sure-footed mountain goat to the strictly unocial grizzly bear, is greater than perhaps in any similar area elsewhere. The altitude is high enough to provide the brilliance and exhilaration associated with the mountains, and yet not so high as to present a problem to those of normal health and physique. Everywhere lies the wilderness, unchanged and unspoiled, yet nowhere is the visitor an hour's drive from the comforts and resources of modern civilization.

Mountain highways have always possessed a peculiar fascination for mankind. The sense of penetrating the unknown and of overcoming obstacles which for ages have been barriers to human progress arouses in many hitherto unrevealed emotions. The Banff-Jasper Highway is no exception, and its appeal to the traveller, the nature student, and the lover of the out-of-doors is universal. In them it unites not merely parks, but peoples and nations.

The Island Of Sylt

German Air Base Has Been Gradually Shrinking For Centuries

Site of the greatest air raid of all time, the island of Sylt had pretty well escaped the notice of history until the present war. Moreover, had it not possessed special advantages for the Germans, first as a bathing resort and then as an air base, it might very well have disappeared completely beneath the North Sea without ever breaking into world news.

For, like its island neighbors, Sylt has been shrinking ever since the annals of Europe have been recorded. The North Frisian group, of which it is largest, had an area of more than 1,000 square miles in 1250 A.D., compared with about 100 today. Of this 100, Sylt occupied about 28 square miles, and the steady shift of its sand-dunes to the west continues to deliver its east coast to the sea.

Only once before has Sylt figured in war. During last century's Danish war it underwent severe punishment, before its occupation by the Prussians in 1864.

If, as seems probable after the recent successful raids, the Germans are forced to abandon the Sylt base, the island may well be left again to the North Sea's steady encroachment.

The Latest Recruits

War is doing strange things in the livestock world. The latest recruits for war work are goats, which are being trained to lead horses from their stables in case of fire. Some hundreds of goats are now installed in stables around London, Eng., and it has been proven that horses do not need to be blindfolded to get them out of a burning stable.

Delivery Is Slow

What with censorship and everything, Swiss people near the German-Swiss border complain it takes 22 days sometimes for the delivery of a letter from a Swiss town to a German point 15 miles away.

Crew Of German Liner Columbus Tells Story Of Scuttling

Crew members of the scuttled German liner Columbus in a story published in the San Francisco Chronicle told of flooding the ship with benzine to the extent that a premature spark "would have killed us all."

The story, told by men now at Angel Island immigration station, San Francisco, explained why two of the Columbus' crew of 580 men died. They were already who "did not make it" to the lifeboats when the order came to fire the benzine.

The crew had been instructed what to do should the scuttling alarm be given. The alarm came Dec. 19 when a British destroyer ordered the Columbus to stop. The paper quoted one crew member:

"All of us ran to our posts and began pouring thousands of gallons of benzine over every inch of the top five decks. Before we had finished we were waiting in benzine."

"One spark would have killed us all, but we prayed there would be no spark. Within 10 minutes the ship was soaking in benzine. We poured the last few gallons over the floor of the main dining saloon and then got into lifeboats, which had been swinging in readiness from their davits for two days."

"At a signal, torchmen lit the lower decks. Two of them did not make it back to the lifeboats. The captain made sure the ship was burning, threw the last torch onto the main deck and then lowered himself to his motor boat."

"In five minutes the ship was afire from end to end."

Almost 150 of the 512 crew members have been returned to Germany by way of Japan. They were men unfit for military service.

The Wise Old Owl

Can Be Depended On As An Excellent Weather Prophet

Prisoners, forced to do without published weather forecasts due to wartime restrictions, found consolation in a letter to the Times received from Lieut.-Col. A. Vickers of Ashwell, Tooting, Essex. He said such information could be obtained from owls.

"I have tested the honor of these excellent weather prophets for some years," he wrote, "and the conclusions are arrived at as follows: If the wood owl calls more than three times at night rain will come within 24 hours. If the barn owl calls even once during the night it will be fine for the next 24 hours."

Finds Canadians Friendly

Wife Of Australian High Commissioner Already Feels At Home

Lady Glasgow, wife of the first Australian high commissioner to Canada, said "There is such a wonderful friendliness and hospitality about Canadian people that I feel at home already." She arrived at Ottawa with her husband, Sir William Glasgow. She expressed interest in the prairie library scheme originated by Lady Tweedsmuir and told of a project in Australia known as the Bush Book Club, which supplies books to farmers and settlers.

Party Ends for Mr. Caffeine-Nerves

ME: Who's the pretty wallflower looking so glum? Has she just lost her best friend?

MR. CAFFEINE-NERVES: Hush! You'd feel bad if you hadn't been able to sleep for a week!

SHE: I think I know her trouble—it's caffeine-nerves. She's always drinking tea and coffee. I'm going over right now and put her wise to Postum! It's delicious—and caffeine-free.

MR. CAFFEINE-NERVES: Stay where you are, Busybody! She can look after herself!

30 DAYS LATER

WALLFLOWER: When I think how I suffered from nervousness and sleeplessness because of caffeine-nerves I give a big cheer for Postum! I'll certainly never go back to tea and coffee!

Mr. Caffeine-Nerves: I'm off! Postum and nervous indigestion don't get along!

Many people can safely drink tea and coffee. Many others—and all children—should never drink them. If you are one of these, try Postum's 30-day test. Buy Postum and drink it instead of tea and coffee for one month. Then, if you do not feel better, return the container top to General Foods, Limited, Cobourg, Ontario, and we'll gladly refund full purchase price, plus postage. Postum is delicious, economical, easy to prepare, and contains no caffeine.

A Punishable Offence

Smuggling Any Article In Or Out Of Internment Camps

It has been made a punishable offence under the War Regulations Act to smuggle letters, newspapers, clippings and other articles in or out of internment camps in Canada, according to an order issued recently by Hon. Ernest Lapointe, acting secretary of state. This became necessary after various attempts were made to evade camp censorship. Conviction of this order will be punished on summary conviction by a fine not exceeding $500 or 12 months' imprisonment.

Contains A Surprise

Increased Efficiency Has Been Developed For London's Balloon Barrage

Important developments have given London's balloon barrage increased efficiency as a means of preventing enemy aircraft reaching objectives, a press association reporter wrote after visiting balloon units. He said an enemy plane would meet "a very disagreeable surprise" if it attempted to fly through the barrage, and that Royal Air Force planes have demonstrated this by experiment.

The Vicer recalled some amusing experiences during the last war. One of them concerned the annual meeting of a branch of the British Legion of which he used to be the padre.

Once, he said, on being challenged by a sentry, he answered, "Chaplain."

The sentry replied, "Pass, Charlie."

Allies Give Notice Of Mines Laid In Norwegian Waters

London.—A statement published by the French and British governments disclosed the Allies have given notice to Norway that they reserve the right to take such measures as they may think necessary to hinder or prevent Germany from obtaining resources or facilities in Norway.

The statement, which was broadcast, said the British and French governments had resolved to deny the use by the enemy of territorial waters for carrying contraband.

They gave notice that three areas of Norwegian waters had been made dangerous to navigation by mines.

Vessels entering these areas did so at their peril, the statement added.

To avoid the possibility of Norwegian or other vessels inadvertently entering these areas the statement said they would be patrolled by British naval vessels until 48 hours after laying the first mine.

The statement declared the mine laying would not interfere with free access by Norwegian ships to their own ports.

Text of the statement follows: "In recent weeks the German campaign against merchant shipping of all nations has been intensified and pursued with even greater brutality than before. The number of neutral ships destroyed by German action is now well over 150 and the number of neutral lives lost is nearly 1,000.

"These attacks have been carried out in almost every case in defiance of the recognized rules of war, frequently in circumstances of the greatest barbarity and on many occasions without the slightest justification for interference of any sort with the ship. Germany has announced that she regards herself as entitled to destroy any neutral ship en route to any British port, including contraband control harbors, and there have, moreover, been repeated cases of vessels being destroyed on a voyage between two neutral ports, when vessels had no intention of touching at a British port at all. It is obvious that the German government are engaged in an indiscriminate campaign of destruction throughout waters in which their unnotified mines are laid or in which their submarines are in a position to operate.

"While in recent weeks the greatest losses have fallen upon neutral shipping, British and Allied vessels have also suffered from adoption of this policy of destruction, a new development of which is bombing from the air of British and neutral traders and fishing boats and machine-gunning of their crews. The innocent character of fishing boats has hitherto been universally recognized but this has not prevented Germany from committing nearly 200 attacks on fishing vessels aimed at sinking them and murdering their crews.

"Even lightships, the object of which is to protect shipping of all nations and which are by international usage treated as non-combatants, have been, with their crews, ruthlessly attacked by bombs.

"It is a fact deserving of constant emphasis that these German attacks have been deliberately aimed at destruction of neutral lives and property and it is abundantly clear that the purpose behind them is pure terrorism. The Allies, on the other hand, have never destroyed nor injured a single neutral ship or taken a single neutral life. On the contrary they have not only saved the lives of many innocent victims of these German outrages but they have also not failed to rescue from drowning German airmen and submarine crews who have been guilty of the inhumanities in question.

"The position is, therefore, that Germany is flagrantly violating neutral rights in order to damage the Allied cause, while insisting upon the strictest observance of rules of neutrality whenever such observance would provide some advantage to herself.

Many Cargoes Released

Officials in British Contraband Control Ports Are Kept Busy

London.—On April 2 there were 20 neutral ships in three British contraband control ports, the ministry of economy warfare announced.

Ten of these had been in these ports for five days or less. The vessels included 13 Dutch, three Norwegian, two Belgian, one Danish and one English.

During the week ending March 30, the contraband committee examined cargoes of 100 ships which had arrived since March 23 and 28 others from the previous week. The combined total of 128 shipments of the following nationalities: 36 Dutch, 33 Italian, 17 Norwegian, eight Belgian, seven Swedish, five American. In 66 cases the cargoes were released intact either on first consideration or after inquiries.

Edison Plaque Unveiled

Stratford, Ont.—A plaque in memory of the late Thomas Alva Edison who worked here as a telegraph operator in 1863-64 was unveiled by Dr. W. J. Browning, 97, said to be the oldest living telegraph operator on the North American continent. Thomas Edison died in 1931.

Brigadier-Gen. Odlum Selected To Command The Second Division

Ottawa.—Brigadier-General V. W. Odlum has been selected to command the second Canadian Division of the Canadian Active Service Force, Hon. Norman Rogers, minister of defence, announced.

"In making this selection the government of Canada has been influenced by General Odlum's long and distinguished career and his devotion to the service of his country, both in the field and as a citizen of Canada," Mr. Rogers' statement said.

General Odlum, born in 1880, started his military career at the age of 17 as a private in the 2nd Oxford Rifles at Woodstock, Ont.

After joining the 2nd battalion of the Royal Canadian Regiment in 1899, he went to South Africa where he participated in operations in the Orange Free State, including operations at Paardeburg, actions at Poplar Grove, Driefontein, Houtnek and Zand River. For his services, he was awarded the Queen's South African medal with three clasps.

On his return to Canada, he followed courses at Victoria college and the University of Toronto, specializing in political economy. He returned later to South Africa as a lieutenant in the 3rd Canadian Mounted Rifles.

On his return to Canada, he was appointed provisional 2nd lieutenant in the 4th Highlanders of the Canadian militia in Toronto. In 1903 he was transferred with the same rank to the 6th regiment (Duke of Connaught's Own Rifles) in Vancouver.

Later he became a lieutenant in the 102nd regiment at Nelson, B.C. In 1910 upon the formation of the 100th Winnipeg Grenadiers, he was transferred to this regiment as a provisional captain. He was promoted captain April 1, 1910.

In August, 1913, he rejoined the militia. He was appointed a captain in the regiment (Irish Fusiliers of Canada) in Vancouver. He was promoted major in this unit in 1914. At the outbreak of the Great War, he was appointed major in the 7th Battalion, C.E.F., and saw active service in France.

He became lieutenant-colonel and officer commanding this unit in April, 1915. In 1916 he was promoted brigadier-general and appointed to command the 11th Canadian Infantry Brigade. He was then 35 years of age.

General Odlum was three times wounded: the first time in August, 1915, and then in May, 1916, and September, 1918.

General Odlum is a companion of the order of the Bath and of the Order of Saint Michael and Saint George. He was also awarded the Distinguished Service Order and Bar. He holds the Colonial Auxiliary Forces long service medal and the officers' decoration, and also the Order of Danilo.

General Odlum has been a member of the board of governors of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation since its creation in 1936 and recently was appointed vice-chairman of the board.

Parliament Opening

House Sessions In The Second Or Third Week Of May

Ottawa.—Parliament will not open until the "second or third week in May," Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced at the first press conference he has held since January. Traditionally parliament opens on Thursday and there are five Thursdays in May. It is now believed likely the opening date will be either May 16 or 23.

Mr. King gave correspondents details of the appointment of the Earl of Athlone as governor-general of Canada, revealed the defence minister, Hon. Norman Rogers, would leave shortly to confer with British military authorities in England and inspect the Canadian forces there, and discussed political matters generally.

Date of Mr. Rogers' departure will remain an official secret owing to war conditions, but his stay in the United Kingdom will not be long. He will be back before parliament opens. Mr. King said it was considered desirable that Mr. Rogers, responsible for Canada's naval, military and air activity in the war, including the British commonwealth air training plan, should consult with members of the British government and leaders of the various services.

New Trade Pact

Great Britain And Netherlands Have Reached Agreement

Amsterdam.—A new trade agreement between Great Britain and the Netherlands, negotiated in an effort to reduce friction over wartime blockade restrictions on Holland's commerce, was implemented by the issuance of two royal Netherlands decrees.

In general, the decrees are designed to guarantee that imports from overseas will not be re-exported to Germany. In return British blockade delays to Dutch shipping will be minimized.

Recognition also will be given to the right of the Netherlands to export to belligerents most of her home produce, especially agriculture and dairy products.

To Guard Palace

Canadian Troops To Mount Guard At Buckingham

London.—Canadian troops will mount guard at Buckingham palace from April 17 to 24 inclusive, it was announced.

The Royal 22nd Regiment of Quebec will furnish the guard for the first four days and the Toronto Scottish for the second period.

The duty of mounting guard on Buckingham Palace is a privilege hitherto reserved exclusively for the Brigade of Guards, though in a few instances the rule has been relaxed, such as during the coronation when Dominion troops took a turn.

London.—King George decorated 30 men and one woman for distinguished war service at special ceremonies in Buckingham palace. Miss Gladys Taylor of the Royal Air Force nursing service received the Royal Red Cross.

The only Canadian honored at the investiture was Acting Flight Lieutenant Robert Henry Niven of Calgary, awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for "gallantry and devotion to duty in the execution of air operations."

Swiss Troops Called Up

Units Totalling Tens Of Thousands Of Men Summoned

Geneve, Switzerland moved near general mobilization as the general staff summoned to active service 41 army units totalling tens of thousands of troops. They are to report April 15 and 22.

The call was connected with the high command's announced determination to keep the Swiss strength as closely as possible on a level with the number of troops any one belligerent has stationed near Switzerland's borders.

Swiss military quarters believed the Germans have between 12 and 18 divisions (about 180,000 to 270,000 men) in the Baden and Wurttemberg areas north of Switzerland. Swiss officials said, however, their presence "gives no immediate cause for alarm."

This attitude was reflected in Basel, near the long dormant upper Rhine front between Germany and France.

Mass Construction

Britain To Build Ships Faster Than They Can Be Sunk

London.—Mass construction methods in shipbuilding will enable British shipyards to break all existing records in the near future, William Westwood, secretary of the Ship Constructors and Shipwrights' Association, said in his annual report.

"In all the shipyards of the country," he declared, "construction will go forward at a more rapid pace than that at which our ships can be sunk."

"Each shipyard will build one type of ship—the kind it can build fastest and most cheaply."

Although these quickly-built craft will be designated "emergency ships," Westwood said, they will not be as fragile as were some of the vessels turned out under the emergency construction program of the last war.

Princess Mary Reviews Troops

Aldershot, Eng.—Princess Mary reviewed the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals, dressed in the khaki uniform of their colonel-in-chief. The corps, in full battle kit, was inspected rank by rank by her royal highness. Then, with Lieut. Col. J. E. Genet at their head, they marched past as she took the salute from a canopied, red-carpeted reviewing stand.

Britain Warns Sweden And Norway As To Neutrality Attitude

Swedish Ore Deliveries

Efforts Being Made To Defeat The British Blockade

Narvik, Norway.—A tour of Sweden's ore areas indicated that Germany has ordered Swedish iron ore deliveries speeded up to the seaport of Lulea.

This was considered an effort to defeat the British blockade. By making large amounts of Sweden's vital ore available at Lulea, the Germans evidently hope to transport it by ship through the Gulf of Bothnia to German Baltic ports, where the Germans think it will be safe from interference by the blockade.

The ore was formerly shipped to the Norwegian port of Narvik for transport to Germany along Norway's North Sea coast. The ore is now being piled up on the docks at Lulea awaiting the spring thaw in the Gulf of Bothnia and the Baltic sea.

The thaw is expected in about three weeks, which will permit German ships to begin movement of the ore.

Prohibits Publication

Order Issued In Connection With Russian Newspaper In Winnipeg

Ottawa.—An extra edition of the Canada Gazette, contained an order from Justice Minister Lapointe, in his capacity as acting secretary of state, prohibiting publication of the Russian language paper Kanadsky Gidok (The Canadian Whistle) at Winnipeg. The order was issued under Defence of Canada regulations preventing dissemination of subversive propaganda.

"It has been represented that the publication Kanadsky Gidok, published in the Russian language at Winnipeg, has been disseminating subversive and pro-Nazi propaganda among persons of Russian origin in western Canada with a view to assisting the enemy and undermining the loyalty of such persons in Canada," said the order.

Plan For Egg Export

Ottawa.—The egg producers of British Columbia have made application for a marketing scheme. Purpose of the scheme would be to assist the export of eggs to Britain. The application is being considered here and is likely to go through if the producers support it in sufficient numbers.

Britain's Position Is More Consolidated As The War Progresses

London.—Prime Minister Chamberlain said in a speech that he was 10 times as confident of victory as he was when the war started.

He said neutral sentiment was growing in the Allies' favor, and his statements implied that the Allies were not going to let the stark test of law interfere with its intensification of its blockade if Germany continued to violate, as the British hold it has, the neutrality of foreign territorial waters.

Addressing a political gathering, and not the House of Commons, Chamberlain gave himself more range than he usually does. He declared the Nazis and breathed complete confidence that the Allies were going to win the war however it was waged and however long it lasted.

Denouncing peace organizations, Chamberlain said their work was mischievous. But he added, recent by-elections for seats in the House of Commons had proved that the voters were not taking their demands for peace seriously.

He turned to the story of the war. Germany's preparations were ahead of Britain's, he pointed out, and therefore it might have been suspected that it would take advantage of this to try to overwhelm the Allies.

"But it is not very extraordinary that the enemy made no attempt to overwhelm us and France," he commented. "Whatever may be the reason, whether it was that Hitler thought at the moment as away with what he had got without fighting or whether it was that after all his preparations were not sufficiently complete, one thing is certain—he missed the bus."

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Small European nations were warned months ago by Winston Churchill that if they did not stick together against German aggression, they would be conquered separately. First it was Czechoslovakia, then Poland, followed by Russian aggression and invasion of Finland. At present writing it is evident that the Scandinavian countries are victims of German aggression. So Winston was right.

Those American journalists and politicians who refer to it as a phoney war may yet find that it will affect United States to such an extent that they will have to side with the Allies. The boast of "The Land of the Brave and The Free," with the Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor welcoming European emigrants, appears out of keeping with the present attitude of many people in the Republic. The Monroe doctrine will avail little if Great Britain were vanquished, for Hitler has made a boast that with a large body of people of German origin in the United States, he would have little difficulty in fomenting revolution there and thus enable that vast country to become subject to German influence and eventual conquest. During the Great War German submarines destroyed American shipping close to America's coastline, and even showed up in American ports. Some comfort themselves with the thought "it can't happen here," but there is plenty of proof to show that even Canada and the United States could have some real war experience, from European aggression against Great Britain. So far countries on this side of the Atlantic have been extremely fortunate.

To see ourselves as others see us is good in order to get a truer perspective of ourselves. In Maclean's Magazine there has appeared a story by Leslie MacFarlane entitled "Wakeville, Awake!" To people in small towns it proves particularly amusing, for no matter if some of the incidents run to the extreme in portraying the lack of law enforcement by village policemen, they are in the main true. There are two signs by the tennis court corner warning motorists to slow up. We have observed on numerous occasions that some motorists take not the slightest notice and hurtle past the signs as if there were none there. Some day there will be a collision, someone will be hurt, then someone will appear before the magistrate. Those who think they are good drivers are often the most dangerous to other people, and themselves. Are there any town by-laws, or are they simply forgotten? Prevention is always better than waiting till someone is hurt or killed.

DISCUSSION has often arisen on the basis of assessment on real estate and improvements. The Journal has contended that the fairest basis is to have a single tax on land. The present system of taxing improvements penalizes those who try and improve not only their homes but the appearance of the town. It is a fact that householders who have improved their homes have had to pay heavily for their enterprise and civic pride. The single tax would avoid this, and though it might increase the land assessment, it at least would equalize the taxes on owners. Under the present system of assessment, a man might build a house worth five thousand dollars, and next to him might be one worth a thousand.

and. Some owners spend their spare time making improvements of a substantial nature; others make no effort whatever. But the unfair thing is that he who spends his time making his home worth-while is faced with increased taxes. The system is wrong, and the single tax is the remedy.

The time to commend a good action on the part of individuals is in the present; to not defer it till the time when they cannot hear it. In this connection there comes to our notice quite frequently the good work of Miss Yuill, for many years in charge of Cameron school. Many young people have passed through her classes and have grown into adults, but it is a sure thing that they will remember her example in character training. It is the Junior Red Cross which has claimed her special attention, as persistently in peace time as in war. In the war campaigns now being carried on by the Red Cross, her help is sought frequently, for she has a band of young people who make a good job of selling tags or tickets for concerts and dances. Also they have made up articles to send to the Junior Red Cross hospital, and books which, containing interesting information of our schools and town and province, have been sent to schools in far distant lands of the Empire. The example of a good teacher is remembered throughout life, and in character training is of greater importance than scholastic attainment or brilliancy. Another teacher of the young is Mrs. M. Clifford. Her own family has reached adulthood, but she continues training the young minds of the infant classes. Apart from school hours she has for years been organist and choir leader of St. Alban's church, besides taking a leading part in the women's organizations of the church. It is people who do these things for the community purely of their own volition, without waiting to be asked, who are the salt of the earth and our towns and cities.

TRUE INDEED, BROTHER!

"The Printed Word" is a very interesting publication published monthly by J. G. Johnston and Associates, of Montreal and Toronto. Often it is quoted in daily and weekly newspapers. An interesting paragraph is the following: "Since a politician's first objective is to get himself elected, he cannot avoid being an opportunist, and if a depression follows the present war, who can doubt that sniping at business will again become an effective vote-catching device?" We in Alberta know this to be only too true in the light of the past few years.

BISHOP Sherman was right.

In a broadcast last Friday on the use of words, he urged the use of simple, easily understood words to convey a message. Too many think a long word is more impressive than a word of one or two syllables which might convey the same meaning. For plain, unadorned language, yet forceful, the Bible is often pointed to as a classic example.

Bank-Jasper highway will become one of the greatest tourist attractions in the world, it was predicted by Robert J. C. Stead, publicity director of the national parks bureau as he came west to interview Alberta officials with regard to the official opening July 1. Mr. Stead said that the road may possibly be opened for traffic before the official opening takes place.

Miss Greta Lipovski, of Fernie, was the week-end guest of her sister, Mrs. Ferucio DeCocco.

Mr. Wm. Cole sr., of Victoria is visiting his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cole jr., of Bellevue.

Mr. and Mrs. George Jenkins and Mrs. A. Y. Dow motored to Calgary on Tuesday where they attended the Calgary Port Arthur hockey game.

Mrs. Jack Houghton and Mrs. Peter Haman left Wednesday morning for Calgary where Mr. Haman underwent an operation for goitre.

Miss Eleanor Neilson, who has been visiting her parents for the past few months, returned to Rochester on Friday where she will resume her duties as nurse.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard T. Falk, who have been in charge of the Nazarene Mission for some months, left on Sunday night for Vancouver, where they will remain for the present.

Colemanites motoring to Lethbridge last week to see the much publicized movie "Gone With the Wind" were Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Rippon, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. C. McDonald, Mrs. Norman MacAuley, Dr. and Mrs. Rose and Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Gardner.

Mrs. Henry Claes Died Wednesday
The Journal regrets to record the passing of Emily Theresa, wife of Henry Claes, on Wednesday, April 10, in her 39th year. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tiberghien, she was born in Belgium on Sept. 3, 1900, and had lived here for 17 years. Besides her husband, near relatives living here are her brothers Henry and Alphonse, and sister Miss Lydia Tiberghien of Calgary. Mr. Tiberghien, sr., has lived in British Columbia for some years, where he has a farm, and is expected to-day for the funeral, which will be held on Saturday.

A. Pollack's House Destroyed by Fire
Fire raged through the home of Adam Pollack, situated on the flats, at 2.30 on Wednesday morning, completely destroying the building, furnishings and a quantity of clothing. The loss is only partially covered by insurance. Damage is estimated at $2,000.
Mr. and Mrs. Pollack were awakened by the strong smell of smoke and found fire had started in the wall separating the kitchen from the sitting room. They managed to secure some clothing before the heat became so intense that they were

WEDDINGS
Beddington—Hulbert
A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Alban's church on Saturday, April 6, Rev. J. R. Hague officiating, when Iowna Georgina, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Havlock Hulbert of Coleman, was united in marriage to Roy Westly, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Beddington of Coleman. Miss Helen Gate, cousin of the groom, and Fred Beddington jr., a brother, were the attendants.
The wedding supper was held at the home of the bride, the table being centred with a beautiful wedding cake. A reception was held at the home of the groom's parents.
The happy couple left for Calgary for a short honeymoon and on their return will reside in Coleman where the groom is employed.

Miscellaneous Shower
The Misses Helen and Dorothy Gate were joint hostesses at their home on Friday evening at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Mrs. Roy Beddington (nee Miss Iowna Hulbert). Thirty-five guests were present.
Court whist was played, prize winners being Miss Olive Brown, Miss Irma McLeod and consolation to Miss Amy Harrison. The highlight of the evening's entertainment was the staging of a mock wedding which created much amusement.
The guest of honor was the recipient of many useful gifts for which she thanked the guests present.
The marriage took place on March 21 of George Vincent, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wes. Vincent of Coleman, and Miss Helen Dacon of Calgary. The newlyweds are residing at Michel where the groom is employed.

Robert Shields, construction engineer at International mine for several years, has resigned his position with the company. He left Monday for a short visit with his parents at Lethbridge and will later leave for eastern Canada where he will reside.

Birthday Parties
Mary Rose, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Rose, gave a birthday party at her home on Friday evening. Fifteen young friends were present and all were given a wonderful time. Mary was the recipient of a number of gifts.
Donald Graham, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Graham, was host to three of his friends at a party on Sunday evening to celebrate his birthday.
Fred Founds jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Founds, was host at a birthday party at his home on Saturday afternoon. A number of his young friends presented him with presents and wished him many happy returns of the day.
Swearing in of the new government—which will be preceded by selection of a cabinet by Premier Aberhart, will not be carried out until the week of April 14 at least, it was indicated here when the premier left Edmonton for a ten day coast holiday. WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

During 1938, England imported $22,200,000 worth of butter, only one-half of which was produced in the British Empire.

A large force of police and soldiers raided St. Anne's estate near Dublin and arrested 22 men suspected of illegal military drilling.

More than 70,000 London children between the ages of eight and 11 returned to school April 15 for the first time since the outbreak of the war.

A Dutch tugboat captain, convicted of giving information to Germany concerning the location of telegraph and cable lines in the Netherlands, was sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

Admiral Pierre Ronarch, inventor of a minesweeping device used in the first Great War and holder of one of the most distinguished fighting records in the French navy, died in Paris at the age of 75.

Two hundred of the 250 British volunteers who reached Finland before the end of the war with the Soviet Union have decided to stay in the country to help in reconstruction.

British merchants, burdened by war taxes and worried about wartime business, want the government to suspend compulsory war risk insurance until air raids really materialize.

The United States' refusal to recognize the new Japanese approval regime of Wang Ching-wei, in China, although expected, added strain to relations between Washington and Tokyo.

Miss L. M. Foster, believed to be Britain's first and only woman admiral, is dead. She was an admiral because as mayor of Southampton in 1928 she became admiral of the port, entitled to an admiral's salute of guns.

A French Phrase

Trying To Substitute Another Name For Hors d'oeuvre

The hors d'oeuvre is not exactly hors de combat in the Middle Western United States but it is painfully wounded. Midwest hotel men have been trying to rush to the aid of the myriads who have sprained their vocal chords attempting to pronounce the French phrase. The hotel men offered a prize for a new word to take the place of the French, and the best they could get was "appetizer."

It is a word which we doubt will be incorporated into the great American language, lenient and inclusive as that language may be. There is something singularly unappealing about it. If our impression of Midwestern hotel guests is correct, they will likely continue to say to waitresses, "Hey, girlie, pass over a few of them little gadgets on the tray, willya?"

An Effective Weapon

James Whitcomb Riley Knew Best Way To Strike Back

Lovable, kindly James Whitcomb Riley possessed such a fine sense of humor that nothing apparently could ruffle his sweetness of temper. Once after giving a reading of his warmly human poems, he was bitterly assailed by a celebrated foreign writer, who claimed he was corrupting the English language by writing in Hoosier dialect. "Why didn't you strike back?" someone asked Mr. Riley. "I did," replied the poet. "I hit him with a great chunk of silence."

A report from Rome says that until 1922 there were 600,000 olive trees in Libya, North Africa; under Italian occupation there are now 3,000,000.

The Soviet Union depends almost entirely on its own raw materials for its food industry, importing only a few items, such as cocoa.

More Letters Being Written

British Firm Of Pen Makers Reports Big Increase In Orders

The millions more of private letters written each week since war has scattered so many families far and wide, have led to big increases in the demand for fountain pens and ink. Not only throughout the British and French empires but also in countries like Holland and Belgium, where armies have been mobilized and civilians evacuated, letter-writing has become the only means of keeping families in touch.

The representative of a British firm of pen makers who in peacetime made one continental journey a year, had to visit available European countries in January and February and expects to continue taking large orders. There has even been an unusual demand for fountain pens in Turkey. Orders for ink are up 50 per cent. in general.

The matter of payment is not so easy as usual, however. But one pen salesman traded pens for tobacco leaf in Bulgaria, and for dried codfish in Iceland. St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Have Dangerous Job

Stokers Knew If Ship Attacked Their Chances Are Small

The stokers don't get much heroic notice. Their life is not spectacular. They don't participate in the mad dashes to the guns or in the excitement of the decks. Instead, they are away below shoveling coal for all they are worth. If there is a chase, the stokers have to extend their efforts in the mad endeavor to get steam and more steam. Without their work, the ships would lose headway and wallow in the trough of the waves. And, as they shovel, the stokers know that they are caught like rats in a trap. If a torpedo hits, they have little chance to get out on deck and away in the boats. They have to keep at their posts until the last moment, and then it is so often too late to escape. —Windsor Star.

Queen Victoria

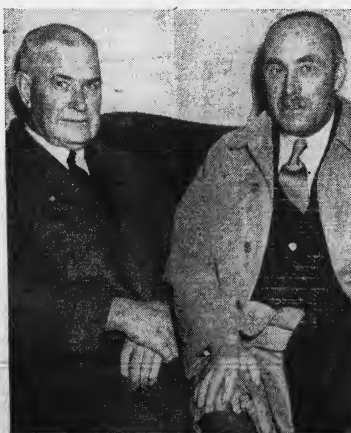

Reference Made To Royal Honey-moon 100 Years Ago

My mother was present inside Buckingham Palace when Her Majesty Queen Victoria and His Royal Highness Prince Albert left it for their honeymoon 100 years ago.

My grandmother drove up from her home on Clapham Common with some of her children, in order to see something of royal wedding, and as their carriage was drawn up outside the palace an officer approached my grandmother and asked if she were —, whom he was ordered to escort inside. She replied in the negative, but he said he could find this lady nowhere and would my grandmother care to have the opportunity instead.

She gratefully accepted, and she and my mother and her brothers were able to see the Queen and her bridegroom descend the steps and leave the palace. —A letter to the London Times.

Resents The Criticism

Newspaper Man Dislikes Sarcasm Of Professor Regarding Errors

J. R. H., in the Toronto Telegram, says:

We heard a university professor getting sarcastic the other day about small errors in newspapers.

We won't stand for that. We'll pick out the mistakes in the newspapers—but we won't have an outsider taking cracks at the newspaper family.

We just ask you to consider the case.

The newspaperman writes his story in a rush, just one step ahead of the deadline for the edition.

He always does this when he could have written it three days before. If he didn't wait for the last minute to write it he wouldn't be a newspaperman.

The copy reader reads it swiftly with one eye on the clock watching edition time.

The printer sets it with one eye on the clock watching for quitting time. The proof reader skims through it for errors, with one eye on the clock and the other on the pretty girl who reads the copy aloud to him.

And steaming with the speed with which it has been handled, the newspaper story stands before the reader in print, a half-hour after it was just a nebulous theory in the mind of some reporter.

Then a university professor chortles with glee because he finds a present and a past tense playing hide-and-seek with each other in one paragraph.

But take a university professor. When he sets out to write anything he takes six weeks to write one short chapter of a book.

The printer reads it, then the proofs come back to the professor. He reads them.

His secretary reads them.

His wife reads them.

His married daughter reads them.

Six years later the book is printed — with an extra page enumerating the mistakes that have been missed.

He makes the mistakes appear learned and respectable, however, by calling them "errata."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

APRIL 14

HOSEA TELLS OF GOD'S FORGIVING LOVE

Golden text: If we confess our sins, he is faithful and righteous to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. I John 1:9. Lesson: Hosea 6: 1-7; 14: 4-9. Devotional reading: Isaiah 1:16-20.

Explanations and Comments

Assurance of Divine Mercy and Forgiveness, Hosea 1:1-3. In the first three verses of this chapter, Hosea entreats the people of Israel to return to the Lord, and bids them offer this penitent prayer: "Take away all our iniquity and accept what in us is good; instead of burning offerings (bullfrogs) we offer thee our prayers (the offering of our lips). We will no longer trust in Assyria, nor in Egypt nor in idols, the work of our hands, but in thee alone, Helper of the fatherless." To this penitent prayer the Lord will respond: "I will heal their backsliding, I will love them freely." Hosea is very sure of mercy and loving kindness of God. If these rebellious countrymen will repent, they will be forgiven. His anger is turned away from them. "The forgiveness that is with God is not like that narrow, difficult, and begrudging forgiveness that is found among men; but it is full, free, boundless, bottomless, and before which our sins are as a cloud before the east wind and a rising sun."

The prophet searches through the world of nature for emblems of the Divine forgiveness and mercy. The soft distillation of the dew, the gorgeous raiment of the Easter lily, the far-reaching spurs of the Lebanon range, the spreading branches of the olive tree as they rustle in the breeze, the sound of the wind which has been sweeping over mountain peaks bringing to the favored valley the perfume of the heather and thyme, the golden corn ripe for the harvest, all are emblems of the forgiveness that is among the images that stem from the inspired imagination of the prophet-seer (F. W. Meyer).

Gardening

Old gardeners spread out the garden fresh vegetable season by taking the advantage of new, later and earlier varieties.

Corn is a typical example. At one time it was big and possible to get only a variety of Golden Bantam. Cobs were short and the season also. Now there are offered three or four different Bantams. Types—some extra early, some regular season, some late. Cobs have been lengthened, kernels made bigger. One can get the finest table corn for over a month instead of but a week or two as in the old days.

Impatient Beginners

The beginner is inclined to rush the season. It will not hurt to plant peas, spinach, lettuce or radish, just as soon as ground is ready, or sweet peas and flowers which naturally seed themselves. For the medium hardy types of plants, however, there is no advantage whatever in sowing too soon. There is little growth in any case until the soil really turns warm.

Gardeners are advised to divide the season into at least three parts, sowing a third as soon as weather permits, a third a little later, and the balance at the tail-end of the planting season. In this way if frost does cut down the first batch there will be more plants coming on and the season will be lengthened by the last part of the garden sown.

Rock Gardens

In recent years the rock garden has gone out of its way to make an excuse for one. They will build the lawns up on two different levels with a rock garden in between. These gardens are made to resemble miniature alpine ranges, and the plants and flowers are grown. These are usually tiny, short, sprightly things, that require little moisture and grow in the crevices of the rocks. To hold the sharply sloping soil, the size rocks of the roughest possible nature, preferably weather-beaten boulders, are buried to about two-thirds their depth irregularly throughout the slope. Good pockets of sandy soil are arranged between the rocks. The flowers find a foothold here and trail over the boulders.

Titied Ladies Sponsor Dances For Canadian Soldiers In England

"Please arrange another dance for us; the other was fine," recently came a request from the Canadian troops at Aldershot to the Canadian Women's Club in London.

So for the second time officers and men of the Canadian regiments were invited to an afternoon dance at Grosvenor house, Park-lane, W.

Lady Patricia Ramsay, Hon. Colonel-in-Chief of "Princess Pats," was the guest of honor, and the guests were received by the Countess of Besborough.

The informal nature of these dances has caught the fancy of the Canadians. Each member of the Canadian Women's Club has a table. Officers and men are asked to introduce themselves at the tables if they are not already the guests of someone. They are happy functions, among many others which are constantly being arranged for Jack Canuck in England.

Health LEAGUE OF CANADA
presents
TOPICS OF VITAL INTEREST
by DR. J. W. S. McCULLOUGH

The recent report of the Chief Medical Officer of the English Board of Education shows very impressively what can be done for school children by extra food. In March, 1939, the milk-in-schools scheme was in operation in 18.9 per cent. of the elementary schools and 55.6 per cent. of all children in such schools were taking milk either free or at a payment of half price. "It is extraordinary," says the report, "that there should still be so many parents who do not grasp the opportunity to supply their children with a food so essential to health, growth and development as milk."

This year the London Council experiments with what is called the "Oat breakfast." Adapted to the habits of London children this has become a "health dinner." The meal consists of salad (lettuce, or raw cabbage in winter, tomatoes, cucumber and salad dressing); 1 1/2 ounces of cheese grated over the salad; 3 ounces wholemeal bread; 1/2 ounce New Zealand butter; 1/2 pint milk; and a raw apple or orange. This was served to necessitous children at one centre in the East End and the results compared with those obtained at a neighboring similar centre where hot ordinary dinners were served. The average weekly gains in height and weight were considerably greater in the group receiving the Oat or health dinner. There was an improvement in the blood and a disappearance of minor ailments, especially blepharitis, (inflammation of margins of eyelids).

It is interesting to note that while pasteurization of milk used outside England is not less than 205 cases of London is supplied in proportion, 90 per cent. of milk used in the Metropolitan is pasteurized.

Wedding Presents Missing

Many Of Queen Victoria's Not In Present Royal Collection

The Queen has lately given consideration to some of Queen Victoria's wedding presents which are missing. The inventory of Queen Victoria's wedding is a reminder of this. It is reported that in the archives at Windsor Castle there is a complete list of these presents, but it by no means tallies with the present state of the Royal collection. Some of the presents have been traced, it is said, to other houses where they are regarded as heirlooms. But no one now living can explain how they first passed into the possession of the families who own them.

CHAPTER I.

Mr. Stratford Harlow was a gentleman with no particular call to hurry. By every standard he was a member of the leisured classes, and to his opportunity for lingering he added the desire of one who was pertinently curious.

The most commonplace phenomena interested Mr. Harlow, who had all the requisite qualities of an observer. For example, his enjoyment was without the handicap of sentimentality, a weakness which is fatal to accurate judgment.

Leonardo da Vinci could stand by the scaffold using the dreadful form as his desk, and sketch the agonies of malefactors given to the torture. Mr. Harlow, no great lover of paint, thought of Leonardo. He too could stop to look at sights which sent the average man shuddering and hurrying past; he could stop (even when he was really in a hurry) to analyze the color scheme in an autumn sunset—not to rapaphize poetically, but to mark down for his own information the quantities of beauty.

Inspiration

He was a largely made man of 48, fair and slightly bald. His clean-shaven face was unlined, and his skin without blemish. Pale blue eyes are not accounted beautiful, and the pallor of Mr. Harlow's eyes was such that, seeing him for the first time, many sensitive people experienced a shock, thinking he was sightless. His nose was big and long, and of the same width from forehead to tip. The passport description of his mouth was "full". He had very red, thick lips that seemed to be putting even when they were in repose. A rounded chin with a dimple in the centre, and unusually small ears, completes the description.

His powerful car was drawn up by the side of the road, its two near wheels on the green verge, and Mr. Harlow sat, one hand on the wheel, watching the marshaling of the men in a field. In such moments of contemplative reveries as these, splendid ideas were born in Stratford Harlow's mind, great schemes loomed out of the nowhere which is beyond vision. And, curiously enough, prisons invariably had this inspirational effect.

They were trudging now across the field, led by a bank warden who carried his rifle at the "trail", two ranks of cheerful, sunburnt men in striped jackets and leggings. The old system of dating a man's previous convictions by decorating his cap with mystical letters of the alphabet had gone out, Mr. Harlow noted, and remembered reading something about the practice being discontinued.

and the drab centres of commerce where they find their livelihood.

He had once stood at the corner of a busy street in the Midlands and had taken a twelve-hour census of beauty. In that period, though thousands upon thousands hurried past, he had seen one passably pretty girl and two that were not ill-favored. It was unusual that this girl, who sat side-faced to him, should be pretty; but she was unusually pretty. Though he could not see her eyes, her visible features were perfect, and her complexion, unless his sight was at fault, was without flaw. Her hair he could not see, hidden as it was under her little black hat, but he liked the way she used her hands. He believed in the test of hands as a revelation of the mind. Her figure—what was the word? Mr. Harlow pursed his lips. His was a cold and exact vocabulary, lacking in floweryness. "Elegant," perhaps. He pursed his lips again. Yes, gracious—though why it should be gracious. * * * He found himself wandering down into the roots of language, and even as he speculated he raised her head and slightly and looked at him. In profile she was pleasing enough, but now—

"She is beautiful," agreed Stratford Harlow with himself, "but in all probability she has a voice that would drive a man insane."

"Ingle"

Nevertheless, he determined to look disinterested. His interest in her was impersonal. Two women, one young, one old, had played important parts in his life; nonetheless, he could think of them unprejudiced by this experience. He neither liked nor disliked them, nor more than he liked or disliked the Farnese vase, which could be admired but had no special utility.

Presently his waiter came to take away his plate.

"Miss Rivers," said the waiter in a low voice, in answer to his query. "The young lady came this morning, and she's going back to Plymouth by the last train. She's here to see somebody." He glanced significantly at Mr. Harlow, who raised his bushy eyebrows.

"Is she?" he asked, in a low voice. The waiter nodded.

"Her uncle—Arthur Ingle, the actor chap."

Mr. Harlow nodded. The name was dimly familiar. Ingle? * * * Some-thing with a flower drooping out * * * and a Judge with a cold in his hand.

He began to reconstruct from his association of ideas. He had been in court at the Old Bailey when the Judge had laid the nosegay which every Judge carries—a practice which had its beginning in old times when a bunch of herbs was supposed to shield his Lordship from the taint of Newgate fever. As the Judge had laid the nosegay on the table, three little pimpernels in the centre had fallen onto the head of the clerk. Now he remembered. Ingle! An ascetic face distorted with fury. Ingle, the actor, who had forged and swindled, and had at last been caught. Mr. Stratford Harlow laughed softly; he not only remembered the name but the man and had seen him that morning, scowling and shuffling one shoulder as he slouched past in the field gang. So that was Ingle? And he was an actor.

Mr. Harlow had come back specially to Princeton to find out who he was. As he looked up he saw the girl walking quickly from the room, and, rising, he stroiled after her, to find the lounge empty. Selecting the most secluded corner, he rang for his coffee and lit a cigar. Presently Ellenbury came in, but for the moment Mr. Harlow had other interests. Through the window he saw Miss Rivers walking across the square in the direction of the postoffice, and, rising, he stroiled out of the hotel and followed her. She was buying stamps when he entered, and it was pleasing to discover that her voice had all the qualities he could desire.

Getting acquainted.

Forty-eight has certain privileges, and he found the openings which would lead to Twenty-eight's eternal confusion. "Good—morning, young lady. You're a fellow guest of ours, aren't you?" He said this with a smile which could be construed as fatherly. She shot a glance at him and her lips twitched. She was too ready to smile, he thought, for this visitation of hers to be wholly sorrowful. "I'm lunched at the Duchy, yes, but I'm not staying there. It is a dreadful little town!" "It has its beauty," protested Mr. Harlow.

He dropped speech on the counter, took up a local time-table, and, waiting while the girl's hand was counted, fell in beside her as they came out of the office.

"And romance," he added. "Take the Feather Inn. There's a building put up by the labor of French prisoners of war."

From where they stood only the top of one of the high chimneys of the prison was visible. She saw him glance in that direction and shake his head. "The other place, of course, is dreadful—dreadful! I've been trying to work up my courage to go inside, but somehow I can't."

A War-Time Risk

Farmers Should Keep Well Informed On Production Problems

There are many risks in the business of farming, some avoidable, and others unavoidable, states the Agricultural Supplies Board, and observes there is one very dangerous risk that can be avoided very easily—that of being insufficiently informed in dealing with your production requirements.

For years agricultural scientists and experimentalists have been at work in laboratory, bar, and field. Their object has been to supply the farmer with the practical knowledge and the added incentive of up-to-the-minute information on the best practices in crop and animal production and the prevention of losses through pests and diseases. With the benefit of accumulated knowledge and the added incentive of war-time production requirements, these men are working, more industriously than ever, if possible, in their efforts to assist and serve the producer.

Particular information is just as dangerous in farming as in any other business—such risk may be avoided by utilizing the advice and information readily available from Provincial and Dominion sources, dealing with practically every phase of the business of farming. Winter does not prevent the preparation of a good seed-bed of information. Inquiries for further information should be directed to the nearest Dominion Agricultural Farm or Station, Agricultural College, Provincial or Dominion Department of Agriculture.

New Overseas Airlines

British Overseas Airways May Start Trans-Atlantic Air Service

Rapidly maturing plans for new trans-Atlantic airlines, some of which are destined to connect with the Pan-American Clipper service, were reported in London and in other capitals with the approach of favorable flying weather.

It was disclosed British Overseas Airways Corporation, which will take over direction of the lines formerly operated by British Airways and Imperial Airways, may start trans-Atlantic postal air service this summer if the military situation permits.

Imperial Airways flew experimentally to Montreal and New York last summer.

Lack Mission in Life

Children of Rich Parents Often Less Likely to Achieve Success

Rich youths are born with two strikes on them in the working world, says a psychologist who found that poor boys who strike a job better.

Dr. Lawrence Whistler suggested before the Southern Psychological Association at New Orleans that it may be about time, to begin slightly ignoring the younger generation.

Pampered children, said Dr. Whistler, who tested freshmen at Louisiana University, seem to "lack a mission in life" with tendencies to avoid work and "just dream" of fame and fortune.

His suggestion that perhaps "the current emphasis on care and protection of children should be balanced with an emphasis on the art of science of ignoring children."

A boy's ability to finish a job he started, Dr. Whistler found, would be aided greatly if he had more than three brothers or sisters, lived in a crowded apartment and if—

His father not only did not own the family home but possessed only an old automobile or none at all, made less than $1,500 a year, didn't take the family on vacations, had no servants and wasn't any better off financially since the boy was born.

The psychologist declared that "where there are many children each receives less attention from his parents and is more on his own."

Canadian Films

Monthly Films Depicting The Dominions At War To Be Produced

A series of Canadian produced monthly films depicting the Dominion at war are being started. The first will be titled "Atlantic Patrol" which has already been filmed and is ready for showing.

Other pictures will be made of the war-time boards in the nation's capital. The most cinematic of these proved to be the war supply board headed by Wallace Campbell, who thought stout and greying, was said by cameramen to have a good profile.

It has been suggested that the title of this picture be called "The Workshops of War."

Scores of businessmen will have a chance for stardom in it as it is believed to embrace more so-called "dollar a year men" in the personnel than any other.

Other films now under way besides "Atlantic Patrol" are "Private Lives," showing the troops overseas and "Women at Work."

The Importance Of Man

Can Now Boast Of Having The Longest Span Of Life

There is nothing that worries the human race quite as much as implications that, in certain respects, other animals have the jump on us.

Major Stanley S. Flower, British zoologist, has just contributed to the collective ego of the world by announcing that man can truthfully boast the longest span of life. The old myth about the elephant living longer has no basis in fact, the Major says. As a matter of fact, the oldest elephants fall just short of living 50 years.

The world of man could be a little prouder of this distinction if it could only forget that elephants, at least, have a pretty good chance of finishing their normal life span without worrying about wars and traffic accidents.—Winnipeg Tribune.

For Cause Of Empire

Duty Of War Veterans To Spread The Gospel Of Imperial Unity

The duty of war veterans who today are unable to align fight with the Allies in the present war is to spread "propaganda in the cause of imperial unity," Police Chief D. C. Draper told the Imperial Officers Association at Toronto.

"You have a great work still to do," the chief, himself a brigadier-general in the World War, told the veterans of other wars. "Your strength lies not alone in words but in the fact known to all men that you are prepared to sacrifice deeply if need be, for the Empire's cause."

Mail For Canada's Soldiers

The Canadian army postal base at Ottawa handled 373,000 letters, weighing more than five tons, 80 tons of parcels and 27 tons of newspapers for Canada's soldiers overseas during March, figures released by Major G. W. Ross, officer commanding the Canadian Postal Corps, showed.

Macleod Riding

(High River Times)
A political speaker, in addressing a local audience not long ago, said that he believed Macleod riding to be one of the most important ridings in the west. Such an assertion would naturally be endorsed out of sentiment by every one of us. But viewed objectively, there is much to support his contention. The resources of the riding are of great variety and value. There is probably no part of the west—certainly no part of Alberta—that produces a greater quantity of high quality wheat, and can be depended upon after year for output. There is no finer ranch country, and the beef cattle from our foothill ranches have added to the wealth and fame of the district. Added to this are our mineral resources—the coal mines of the Crown's West Pass and the oil wealth of South Turner Valley fields, are a double asset of tremendous present and potential value. Of lesser importance, but adding considerably to general income, are the earnings from livestock, poultry and dairy products. And the summary of resources would be incomplete without mention of the scenic delights of the mountain country.
It would be interesting to obtain figures on the revenue which is realized through the various industries in this rural riding of Macleod. It would be interesting to learn how this money is spent—how much goes to railways, to eastern manufacturers. We may be more important than we realize in our contribution to national wealth.
From the standpoint of responsibility, our representative at Ottawa carries a heavy burden. He should be alert in support of some established policy. He should have complete data as to coal and oil resources in order to suggest and promote any extension of markets. He should be thoroughly informed on the cattle industry and all its problems of marketing, and the cause of the wheat farmer should have his constant attention.

In the light of the varied and important interests which are embraced within the federal riding of Macleod, we should have strong representation at Ottawa.

NOTICE TO OWNERS AND OPERATORS OF TRUCKS CONVEYING FOREST PRODUCTS

NOTICE is hereby given that Section 63, Paragraph 4, of the Provincial Land Act, 1939, provides as follows:
"Owners and operators of trucks, conveying over any public road or highway, outside of incorporated cities or towns, any product of the forest, either cut or manufactured in the Province, shall in addition to any requirement of The Public Service Vehicles Act, have on his person each trip an invoice in duplicate obtained from the vendor describing in detail the material being conveyed, the name and address of the vendor, his certification thereon as to the land on which the material was cut and the authority for such cutting. One copy of the invoice shall be retained by the operator or owner of the truck for a period of at least six months, and the other copy shall be handed to the purchaser."
IT IS FURTHER PROVIDED by Section 65 of the said Act that if any timber officer or agent is aware that any timber has been cut without authority on Provincial lands, he may seize or cause to be seized wherever found the timber as reported or known to be cut, together with any automobile, trucks, tools and equipment used in the cutting and transportation of such timber, and the timber, timber products, trucks, tools and equipment seized shall be liable to confiscation to His Majesty as provided by Section 106 of the said Act.
